The Non-Obvious
Rapid Fire Q&A Bonus Session

Engage your audience with a fast-paced Q&A after the keynote!

How Does It Work?

After Rohit's keynote from the main stage, this is an accelerated Q&A session with twenty seconds on the clock per question!

1. Create a list of questions

The questions for this session can be scripted ahead of time or submitted by the audience at the event itself. Any topic is fair game!

2. Select a session moderator

This session is typically moderated by someone alongside Rohit who can pose the questions. The moderator can keep the time, or it can be put on the clock for the audience to see.

3. Have the session!

Start the conversation on stage immediately after Rohit's keynote presentation.

Example Questions:

Here are some sample questions that previous events have used with Rohit for this session:

- What's a non-obvious habit that helps you see the world differently every day?
- Has the future ever caught you off guard?
- What did you learn from your first job?
- Do you have a moment when acting quickly completely changed your path?
- What word should we all stop using when talking about the future?
- What trend excites you the most right now?
- What non-obvious lessons have you learned by being a parent?
- What does being responsible for the future mean to you?
- What uncomfortable question should leaders be asking more right now?
- What advice would you give to a young person starting their career right now?
- What's a belief you held in the past that you've changed your mind about—and why?
- What's a tiny moment or decision that had an outsized impact on your life or career?
- What non-obvious skill do you use every day that no one taught you?
- What's a lesson you learned from someone younger than you?
- What's something you've unlearned—and how did that shape your thinking?
- What question do you wish people asked you more often?
